A house, apartment, or other shelters where an individual, family, or household usually resides.

The place of one’s domestic affections. A person’s most personal items are stored at a house, and it is where a person feels secure and welcomed.

A home conveys a narrative and reflects a person’s or family’s interests. A home requires an emotional connection and a sense of belonging, not tangible items. A house may be a home, but a home cannot be a house.

A house where you feel at ease and have all the basics you needed. People have different wants, and they want their dream house to meet their needs and future expectations within their budget.
